Georgian Britain 1714-1837

Barbara English, John Joseph Norman
Palmer, Katharine F., Beedham

Georgian Britain 1714-1837:

Britain in the Hanoverian Age, 1714-1837 Gerald Newman, Leslie Ellen Brown, 1997 In 1714 king George I ushered in a remarkable 123 year period of energy that changed the face of Britain and ultimately had a profound effect on the modern era. The pioneers of modern capitalism, industry, democracy, literature, and even architecture flourished during this time, and their innovations and influence spread throughout the British empire, including the United States. Now this rich cultural period in Britain is effectively surveyed and summarized for quick reference in a first of its kind encyclopedia which contains entries by British, Canadian, American, and Australian scholars specializing in everything from finance and the fine arts to politics and patent law. More than 380 illustrations, mostly rare engravings, enhance the coverage, which runs the whole gamut of political, economic, literary, intellectual, artistic, commercial, and social life, and spotlights some 600 prominent individuals and families.

Luxury and Pleasure in Eighteenth-Century Britain Maxine Berg, 2005-06-30

Luxury and Pleasure in Eighteenth Century Britain explores the invention, making, and buying of new semi-luxury and fashionable consumer goods during the eighteenth century. It follows these goods from china, tea, ware to all sorts of metal ornaments such as candlesticks, cutlery, buckles, and buttons as they were made and shopped for, then displayed in the private domestic settings of Britain's urban middling classes. It tells the stories and analyses the developments that led from a global trade in Eastern luxuries beginning in the sixteenth century to the new global trade in British-made consumer goods by the end of the eighteenth century. These new products, regarded as luxuries by the rapidly growing urban and middling class people of the eighteenth century, played an important part in helping to proclaim personal identities and guide social interaction. Customers enjoyed shopping for them; they took pleasure in their beauty, ingenuity, or convenience. All manner of new products appeared in shop windows, sophisticated mixed-media advertising seduced customers, and created new wants. This unparalleled product revolution provoked philosophers and pundits to proclaim a new luxury, one that reached out to the middling and trading classes, unlike the elite and corrupt luxury of old. Luxury and Pleasure in Eighteenth Century Britain is cultural history at its best, built on a fresh empirical base drawn directly from customs accounts, advertising material, company papers, and contemporary correspondence. Maxine Berg traces how this new consumer society of the eighteenth century and the products first traded, then invented, to satisfy it, stimulated industrialization itself. Global markets for the consumer goods of private and domestic life inspired the industrial revolution, and British products won the world.

Furniture-Makers and Consumers in England, 1754-1851 Dr Akiko Shimbo, 2015-12-28 Covering the period from the publication of Thomas Chippendale's The Gentleman and Cabinet-Maker's Director 1754 to the Great Exhibition 1851, this book analyses the relationships between producer, retailers, and consumers of furniture and interior design, and explores what effect dialogues surrounding these transactions had on the standardisation of furniture production during this period. This was an era before mass production when domestic furniture was made both to order and from standard patterns and negotiations between producers and consumers formed a crucial part of the design and production process This study narrows in on three main areas of this process the role of pattern books and their readers the construction of taste and style through negotiation and daily interactions through showrooms and other services to reveal the complexities of English material culture in a period of industrialisation
