

Socialism in Russia

- Introduction
  - The Russian Soviet Federative Socialist Republic (Russian SFSR or RSFSR), also known as the Russian Soviet Republic and the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic, as well as being unofficially known as Soviet Russia, the Russian Federation, or simply Russia, was an independent federal socialist state from 1917 to 1922, and then the largest and most populous of the Soviet socialist republics of the Soviet Union (USSR) from 1922 to 1991, before becoming a soviet republic in 1991.
- Government
  - Officially, the government was known as the Council of People's Commissars (1917–1946) and the Council of Ministers (1946–1991).
  - Vladimir Lenin, as Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars of the Russian SFSR, led the first government.
  - Boris Yeltsin was the last to serve as both head of government and head of state under the title of President.
  - The Russian Soviet Federative Socialist Republic was ruled by the Communist Party of the Soviet Union until the failed August 1991 coup, which prompted President Yeltsin to suspend the newly formed Communist Party of the Russian Soviet Federative Socialist Republic.
- History
  - Early years(1917-1920)
    - Immediately after the October Revolution, the second of two Russian Revolutions overthrew the interim Russian Provisional Government led by Alexander Kerensky, which governed the Russian Republic. The Soviet government took power on November 7, 1917. For the next five months, the state, which had no official name, would be unrecognized by neighboring countries.
    - The newly-elected Constituent Assembly issued a decree on January 18, 1918, establishing Russia as a democratic federal republic under the "Russian Democratic Federal Republic." The following day, however, the Bolsheviks dissolved the Assembly and declared its decrees null and void.
    - The unrecognized state was renamed the Russian Soviet Republic on January 25, 1918, at the third meeting of the All-Russian Congress of Soviets.
    - On March 3, 1918, the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk was signed, ceding much of the former Russian Empire to the German Empire (Germany) in exchange for peace on World War I's Eastern Front.
    - The Russian Constitution of 1918 was renamed the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic on July 10, 1918.
