

Beyond the Education of Desire

The Utopia of Councils in Abensour

Paul Mazzocchi

Abstract: While critical utopias sought to rescue the political import of utopia, recently scholars have questioned their overemphasis on literary forms and a disempowering pluralism. Challenging the applicability of these claims to one of the instigators of critical utopias, I provide a political reading of Miguel Abensour's understanding of utopia and connect this to councils as a concrete institutional infrastructure. This begins with a re-reading of his influential conception of the 'education of desire' in relation to the simulacrum as a utopian 'model' that, in rejecting identity-thinking, refuses to reduce utopias to a blueprint. I then turn to conceptualising the utopia of councils through the simulacrum on two fronts: first, as a form subject to innovation in the context of the dialectic of emancipation; second, as a content that aims to both 'democratise utopia' by embracing plurality and 'utopianize democracy' by expanding the realm of democratic space.

Keywords: Abensour, councils, critical utopias, education of desire, simulacrum, utopia

The critical turn in utopian thinking sought to rescue utopia from its seeming disrepute. The standard criticism of utopias saw in their utopian substitutionism – in which leaders and their sacrosanct models would absolutely and teleologically guide emancipation – the premonitions of totalitarianism. Ultimately, such blueprint utopias were accused of producing 'a closed, static, authoritarian society that negates temporality and does violence to plurality and

Education Of Desire:

The Education of Desire, 1996 Desire, Education and Teaching Håvard Åsvoll, 2025-06-19 Exploring the implications of a novel theory of educational desire on the prevailing modes of educational research and theory this book contextualises the realm of education studies through the challenging philosophies and theories of Lacan thereby providing a genuinely alternative approach to the study of education Structured into three main parts the book provides a discussion of Lacanian ideas within educational research by setting out a description and analysis of how a theory of desire may work in educational settings and practice Using vignettes and examples to drive the discussion chapters explore the pivotal aspects of desire which could be imaginary symbolic or real elucidated by a mapping of discourses and exploring the reluctance of educational studies to engage with themes related to desire and psychoanalysis Ultimately the book argues for the need to disrupt the theoretical and practical logics and models that limit teacher practice such as accountability visible learning competencies pedagogical knowledge and professional development and how these can be better understood from a Lacanian perspective This book will be of use to scholars researchers and academics in the fields of the philosophy of education the theory of education and teachers and teacher education more broadly Those specifically interested in Lacanian psychoanalysis and a Lacanian view on how the concept of desire may influence educational research and practice will also find the book of use
