

The Geography of Freedom

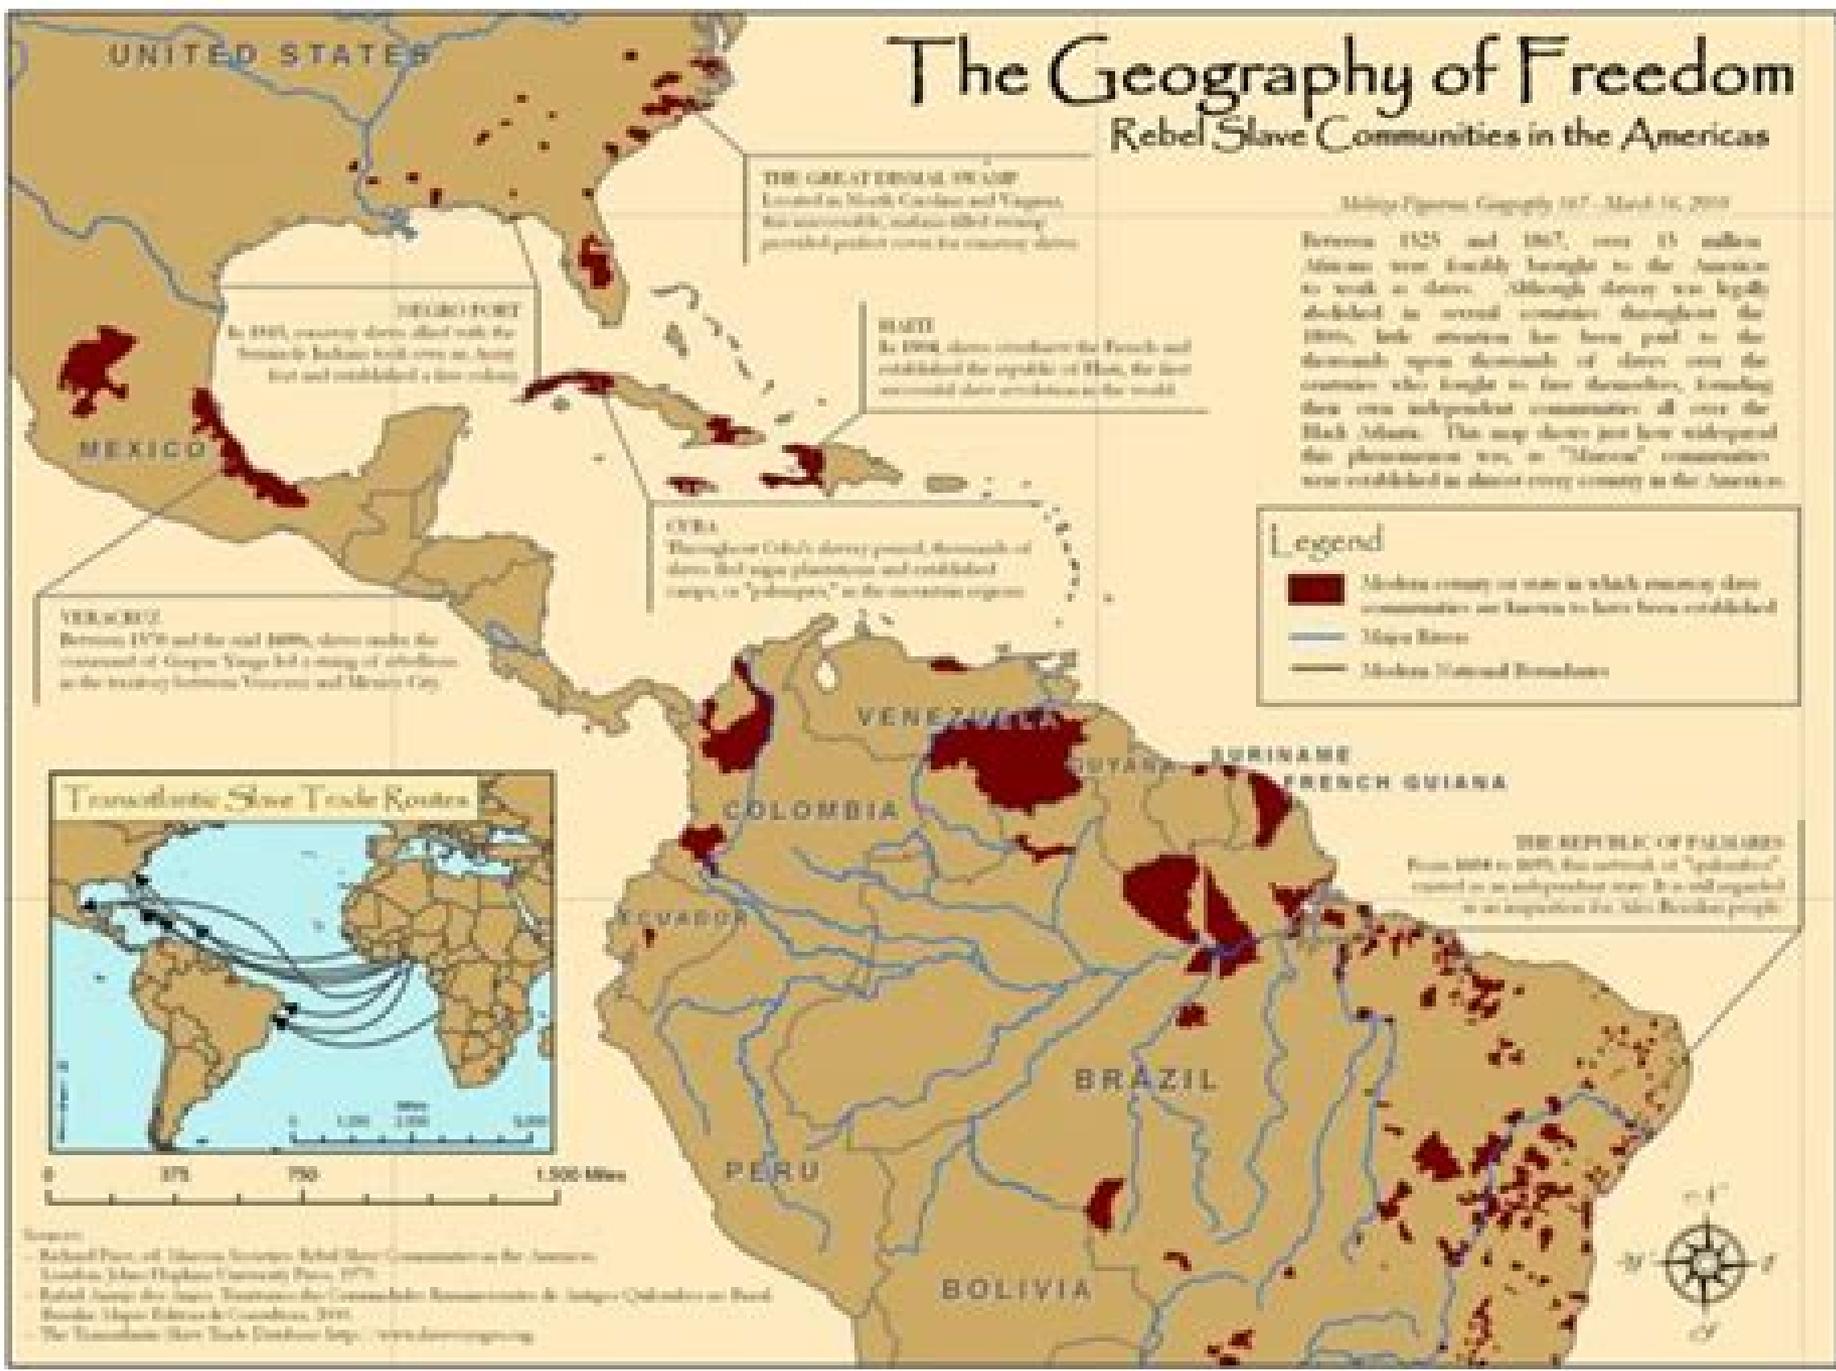

Rebel Slave Communities in the Americas

Melina Figueroa, Geography 107 - March 16, 2010

Between 1625 and 1867, over 15 million African men, women, and children were brought to the Americas to work as slaves. Although slavery was legally abolished in several countries throughout the 19th century, both economic and social conditions in the Americas often demanded the labor of slaves, even in countries where they fought to free themselves, founding their own independent communities all over the Black Atlantic. This map shows just how widespread the phenomenon was, as "Maroon" communities were established in almost every country in the Americas.

Legend

- Modern country or state in which runaway slave communities are known to have been established
- Slave Rivers
- Modern National Boundaries

THE GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS
 Located in North Carolina and Virginia, the inaccessibility, mountain filled terrain provided perfect cover for runaway slaves.

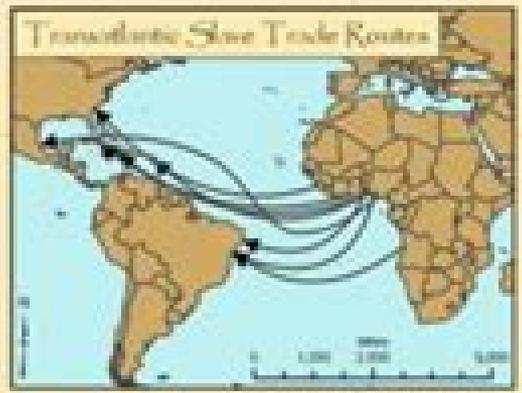

HAITI
 In 1804, slaves overthrew the French and established the republic of Haiti, the first successful slave revolution in the world.

CUBA
 Throughout Cuba's slavery period, thousands of slaves fled sugar plantations and established camps, or "palenques," in the mountain regions.

THE REPUBLIC OF PALMAR
 From 1684 to 1835, the network of "palenques" existed in an independent way. It is well regarded as an inspiration for the "New Brazilian people."

VERMONT
 In 1800, runaway slaves fled north to the British colony that was on its way out and established a free colony.

VERACRUZ
 Between 1570 and the mid 1600s, slaves under the command of Gonzalo Vega led a series of rebellions in the trading harbors Veracruz and Mexico City.
