CHAPTER SEVEN NOTES

Chapter 7: The Road to Revolution (1763-1776)

(I) The Intolerable Acts of 1774

- 1. In 1774, when the American Revolution got underway, the British government passed the Intolerable Acts.
- 2. The British had been treating Americans but somewhat like second-class citizens. Following Boston's Tea Party in 1773, they:
 - Banned from the British market all goods from Boston.
 - Allowed to sell property and conduct business with Europe.
 - Allowed to receive visitors without notice from anywhere but standing army.
 - Allowed to be tried in England and Massachusetts.
 - They began to take a different attitude in 1774, and that they were in the wrong side of the Atlantic.

(II) The Boston Tea Party

- 1. In 1773, the British government, in response to the Boston Tea Party, passed the Intolerable Acts. The acts were aimed at punishing Massachusetts for its defiance of the British.
- 2. The British passed a series of laws that would punish Massachusetts:
 - The British government would ban all trade with Boston until the British were satisfied.
 - The British government would allow the British to station troops in Boston and to quarter British soldiers in private homes.
 - The British government would allow the British to search the colonies for any British property that had been taken from the British.
 - The British government would allow the British to search the colonies for any British property that had been taken from the British.
- 3. The British government would allow the British to search the colonies for any British property that had been taken from the British.
