Emerging Issues and Methods in Personality Assessment John Schinka, 2013. This book constitutes a collection of articles that were written for and recently published as special sections in three consecutive issues of the Journal of Personality Assessment. Part I provides lucid commentaries on the current status of and future issues regarding the Rorschach and MMPI 2 and other instruments including the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory Adolescent MMPI A, the Interpersonal Adjective Scales IAS-R, the Inventory of Interpersonal Problems Circumplex version IIP-C, the revised NEO Personality Inventory NEO PI-R, and the third edition of the Millon Clinical Multiaxial Inventory MCMI-III. The authors not only participated in the development of the instruments but continue to lead the research effort in their application in both clinical and research settings. Part II addresses several issues that have been recurring themes and often topics of debate in the research and professional literature. The contributors discuss the impact of the five factor model on personality assessment, the issue of deception in personality assessment, and various critical issues in the measurement of mood states. Other articles focus on the integration of the MMPI 2 and Rorschach and the process that clinicians should follow when applying scientific knowledge to clinical practice. Part III is primarily devoted to overviews of several statistical methods that are employed infrequently in personality assessment research but have great potential in contributing to the understanding of the complex data sets often encountered in the measurement and study of personality. These articles serve as both an introduction and a brief tutorial for personality researchers who are unfamiliar with the subject matter. They are valuable references that will form the basis for evaluating the appropriate use of these methods in published research in their areas of interest.

Multicultural Assessment Richard H. Dana, 2005-03-23. Psychologists throughout the world are being asked to assess an increasingly diverse clientele: immigrants, refugees, second and third generations still influenced by different cultures and languages, and indigenous peoples now moving towards the mainstream. Most are ill equipped by training and experience to understand, assess, and subsequently treat such clients competently and ethically. Virtually all agree on the need for culture sensitive assessment, but it has proven difficult to provide adequate services despite good intentions and funding. Too often clients who may have different worldviews and health/illness beliefs are marginalized. For many reasons, standard assessment instruments designed, researched, and normed on a few groups in the United States—the MMPI 2, the Rorschach, and the TAT—are used as though they were universally applicable. Most busy practitioners have little time to investigate alternatives developed for use with one new group or another, focused on one issue or another, generally in a research context. In this book, Richard Dana proposes a new model of multicultural assessment practice and points directions for future training and research. He presents general, culture-specific and step-by-step, instrument-specific guidelines for the use of the standard armamentarium with different groups Throughout he highlights exciting new interpretive possibilities the traditional tests offer that should be regularly exploited but emphasizes the importance of recognizing psychometric limits Four extended examples of the use of one or several instruments with a specific group offer concrete illustrations of the model in action Multicultural Assessment Principles Applications and Examples constitutes an invaluable new resource for psychologists and for their students and trainees
