Defence Industries in the 21st Century Çağlar Kurç, Richard A. Bitzinger, Stephanie G. Neuman, 2021-05-13 Defence Industries in the 21st Century explores the transformation in the global defence industrial production through examining the interaction between international and domestic factors With the global defence industry and arms market likely continue to expand and mature the ways in which this progression could influence international politics remain obscure In practice as the contents of this book show the defence industrial bases and arms export policies of emerging states display significant variance This variance is the result of a unique balance between domestic and international factors that has shaped the defence industrialisation behaviour and policies of the less industrialised states One of the most important conclusions of the book is that the interplay between domestic and international factors clearly influences the variation in the emerging states defence industrialisation policies as well as their success or failure While international factors create opportunities they also limit the options available to emerging economies Domestic factors also play an important role by shaping the policy choices of the states decision makers Exploring the balance between international and domestic factors and the ways in which they influence defence industrialisation in emerging states Defence Industries in the 21st Century will be of great interest to scholars of Defence Industries Arms Manufacturing and Defence Strategic and Security Studies more generally The chapters were originally published in Defence Studies Comparative Strategy and All Azimuth precision strike capabilities complicate the future of American access and security here This book addresses what will be needed to maintain the fundamentals of U S seapower and force projection in the Asia Pacific and where the key trend lines are headed in that regard This book demonstrates that U S Asia Pacific basing and access is increasingly vital yet increasingly vulnerable It demands far more attention than the limited coverage it has received to date and cannot be taken for granted More must be done to preserve capabilities and access upon which American and allied security and prosperity depend *California. Guay,2017-09-28 One defining phenomenon of the 21st century to date is the ascent of new countries in the global economic political and security environment While the so called BRICS Brazil Russia India China and South Africa receive most of the attention in business government security and media circles several other countries have become influential regional if not yet global players including Indonesia Mexico Nigeria and Turkey To the extent that economic power translates into political and military power the United States will be faced with multidimensional challenges in the years to come This report evaluates the implications for the U S and global defense industries This paper starts out with an overview of global arms production and trade From there the direction turns to BRICS and Turkey with an overview of each country's most significant current issues termed macro variables. The six countries analyzed in this paper represent the primary non-Western countries that are active in either importing or exporting weapons or both and either currently have or hold the conditions to develop a vibrant defense industrial base over the next decade or two. This evaluation is followed by an overview of each country's defense industrial base with an assessment of their capabilities and economic orientation regarding domestic versus global sales and at the international level the likely recipients based on the global interests of these countries. Four recommendations are made to address the developments in these six countries.
